How these Swords are Crafted

The time-honored artistry of the swordmakers of Toledo, Spain...the techniques of the Japanese mastercraftsman, this is what makes our Collector's Series of swords reknowned for unsurpassed quality. The painstaking process begins with a master engraver who creates a cast using an original hilt. The original mold is given the utmost attention so that no detail is neglected. The hilts are shaped from this original piece and are then hand-finished and polished. The blade of the sword is carefully shaped from the finest 420 stainless steel by a craftsman using a grinding wheel and is fully tempered to 48-53 Rockwell hardness so that is more durable than the original. After the blade is etched and polished, the hilt is hand-fitted onto its tang.

The Japanese

The Tachi sword originated hundreds of years ago when the Japanese realized the benefits of long curved blades. They since have become a symbol of status due to the beauty of their decorative sheaths and their elaborate ornamentation.

The Noble Collection offers five Tachis of unsurpassed quality. Each is a hand-crafted recreation of the utmost precision. The scabbards are unblemished works of beauty and the blades are made of fully tempered, hand-polished 420 C stainless steel.

A. Rosewood Tachi

Highly regarded as the most ornate ceremonial Japanese sword, this extraordinary tachi has a stunning brown wood scabbard and light blue braiding around the grip and mounts. Its naturally simple magnificence allows for the most beautiful display piece, yet its sharp blade makes a formidable usable lethal weapon. It measures 40 inches in length and is ornamented with silver plated guard and fittings and a tassel that hangs from the pommel of the sword.

Rosewood Tachi
MJ0450 $590

Available with a PAYMENT PLAN in 5 convenient payments of $118

B. Rectangular Stand

This exquisite stand is made of fine wood that is lacquered to a flawless finish. A perfect stand for any of the Tachis, it measures 27 inches in height. It also makes a great display stand for katanas.

MT6015 ..... $80

C. Ivory Handle Tachi

This highly ornate tachi follows a traditional trend of bright colors used at times to capture attention during ceremonies. Samurai on horseback battle across the simulated ivory handle in a conventional Japanese battle scene. The detail on the handle is then outlined with vibrant hand painted enamelling. The tsuba and fittings on this masterpiece are plated in 24-karat gold. A matching wakizashi (short sword), fashioned in a tachi format, complements this sword perfectly. Make this set the center of attention in your collection.

The sword of the samurai has been elevated to a symbol of temporal power and justice, and to many it has acquired a spiritual status. It has been described as the very soul of the samurai warrior.

The history of these swords spans one and one half millennia. It is a story of the perfection of steel, and the development of a unique artifact which is at once holy, dreadful and beautiful.

Our samurai weapons are hand-crafted re-creations of the utmost precision. The scabbards are painstakingly shaped and lacquered to a perfect finish. The blades are made of hand-polished 420C stainless steel that is tempered to a hardness of 52 RHc. These swords come fully-sharpened with a cloud or wave pattern on their blades.

Katana- this sword measures over three feet in length. It was the primary fighting tool used by the samurai.
Wakizashi-a sword much like the katana but measuring about 10 inches shorter, it was used as an auxiliary weapon.
Daisho-the katana and wakizashi together are known as a Daisho.
Tanto-the small dagger used by the samurai.

TRADITIONAL SHIRASAYA SET

The beauty of the shirasaya is in its simplicity, yet no other samurai blade is as unique and deadly. Masterfully crafted and graceful, it is reknowned as the ultimate samurai weapon for the incredible sharp blade it conceals in a seemingly harmless staff. The scabbard and handle are lightly finished and made from a single piece of wood to match perfectly. A blood groove runs down the blade which features a "midare-ba" (confused) pattern temper-line. This pattern is the most difficult to construct and temper. Only when removed from their scabbards do these swords hint of their lethal qualities.

Now available as a set in katana (37") and wakizashi (26") length with a matching display, they will stand as a testament to a true enthusiast's love for the samurai blade.
